USED MOTOR OIL

DID YOU KNOW THAT .....

- * The used oil generated by changing your car's oil is recyclable. In fact, motor oil never wears out; it just gets dirty.
- * You should NEVER dispose of used motor oil by pouring it down the sewer, dumping it on the ground, or putting it out with the trash!
- * When used motor oil is poured into the ground, it can seep into the ground-water and contaminate drinking water supplies. A single quart of motor oil can pollute 250,000 gallons of drinking water.
- * Used motor oil contains toxic substances such as lead and chemical additives that can find their way into our lakes, streams and coastal water ways if not properly managed.
- * Used oil that's collected for recycling can be processed and used as industrial boiler fuel, or re-refined into motor oil that's as good as new.
- * Recycling used motor oil helps to protect the environment, while conserving a valuable petroleum resource.

NEVER mix other substances such as antifreeze, paint thinner or parts cleaner with your used oil! This will contaminate the oil making it harder to recycle, and much more costly to dispose of. You can dispose of these other substances at your county's next Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day.

First, check with your local service station or garage.

The following is a list of area service stations. Please call for charges and/or continued participation.
